YOU GET BACK ALL YOU PAY AND MORE ON NEW U. S. BONDS

Only for Small Investor, and There Will Be No "Stunts" to Sell "Thriffs."

TO HELP PAY WAR DEBTS

Always Redeemable With Good Interest if Cashied Ahead of Maturity.

By David Lawrence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14 (Copyright, 1921, The Evening World.)—The far-reaching process of driving America's war debts without pending upon repayment from the allied countries has begun.

President Harding himself announced the decision of the Administration to issue through the Treasury Department a new form of investment which is designed especially for the man and woman of small incomes. After all the experience of the war with every kind of security, the Government has at last evolved a plan that will pay every purchaser of the new certificates $25 for every $100 invested, $100 for every $300, and $1,000 for every $900 if not redeemed in five years.

For the first time, too, the Government guarantees a uniform income irrespective of the date of purchase or market values. Thus, if any certificate is redeemed before the five years pass, the original $30 or $40 or $500 as the case may be is returned to the purchaser but with additional interest of 3 1/2 per cent. for the period that the certificate has been held by the investor.

Absolutely no limit has been placed by the Government on the number of certificates that will be issued to the public as a whole, though an individual is limited to $5,000 worth. The object is to prevent large banks and trust companies from buying all the certificates that the Government may issue. Furthermore, the Government intends to reach the persons of large income by the issuance of another type of Treasury certificate which bears a straight interest rate for short periods like six months or three years. The development of Government policy in this direction is to be gradual, but for the moment the plan is to concentrate on the small investor and teach him the value of the new Thrift Idea.

The Government will thus take care of about $600,000,000 worth of 1917 Treasury certificates which mature about a year hence, and to that extent the proceeds of the new security will be used in refunding. Five months later, three and a half billion of Victory Loan bonds will mature, but that too big an issue to take through small Thrift certificates. Some form of larger denomination will have to be issued, and these to turn up in the refunding through the smaller certificates. In other words, the refunding process is in an experimental stage and the Treasury will know more about the best method of retiring America's debts after the new issue of certificates has been received by the general public.

No "stunt" campaign or flashy tactics will be used in selling the new certificates, as the Government is depending upon the press, the Post Office and the banks to let the small investor know about the opportunity. Officials say there is no special relationship between the announce-

Calve Returns and Tells Sure But Simple Formula For Perpetual Youth

Calve Reveals Her Secret for Postponing Farewell Tours Indefinitely.

"In my country the sun always shines. And it always shines in my heart."

"It is so much easier and pleasanter to smile than to frown."

"No opera, no late card parties, no balls."

"There is fresh air in my bedroom, and I spend most of my time outdoors. I do not take violent forms of exercise."

"A little meat and much fish; no bread, no sugar and no red wine."

How DOES Calve do it?

Meaning, how does she keep so young? How does she "come back," not once but again and again and again? Here she is, to-day, enthusiastically ready for her newest American concert tour, covering a score of cities, and she doesn't even pretend it's a "farewell." No, indeed, she already is planning next year's visit! Small wonder, for Calve's calendar seems to run backward.

In honest truth, she looks not six years older, but ten years younger than when she last visited us in 1915.

And it is no less than thirty-one years since, as a short-skirted, bare-armed young Carmen, who smoked cigarettes and daringly displayed a red satin petticoat, whose black eyes alternately challenged and coaxed every male in the landscape, Flamma Calve danced down to the footlights of the Metropolitan and over them into the heart of New York.

"What is your magic?" I asked her when I found her and her good looking husband, Alnor Gaspari, at the Hotel Savoy, when I saw for myself the pink, firm, unlined cheeks, the round neck and chin, the shining black hair pulled straight back from the forehead at that most trying of coiffures, the youthfully twinkling eyes, the shapely ankles of the great prima donna. "How do you keep from growing old?"

Calve threw back her head and laughed with a display of perfect teeth. Signor Gaspari smiled too; he sat between us and helped out with Calve's good but somewhat limited English. Then she consented to explain her secret of youth; and it's so simple it's likely to be true.

"I am young," she began, "because I have a wise head. Always so simple when I am at home in my beautiful mountain country. I sleep—oh-h-h, how I sleep! At 9 o'clock in the evening I go to bed. No opera, no late card parties, no balls. And I do not get up till 7 in the morning, some times later. But at the least I have ten hours of sleep every night.

ing, when I get up, I do like this"— Calve bent and straightened— "I founded arm and flexed her knee under her sweeping robe—"for ten minutes."

"What do you eat to keep young?" I asked.

"A little meat and much fish," itemized the singer. "Fruits, vegetables, in the morning my breakfast is nothing but coffee with milk. I eat no bread, no sugar, I drink no red wine."

"Then Prohibition won't bother you," I suggested.

"N-I-I-ice Prohibition!" purred Calve, a perfectly diabolical twinkle in her brown eyes. "Prohibition is good for keeping young."

"This is the best word I've yet heard for it," I remarked. "Now, what are your ideas about clothes?"

"For I had noticed Calve's unique costume. I can best describe it as a Greek toga with Japanese kimono sleeves. It was of some soft dark silk with a Greek border in a solid pencil stripe, and its flowing lines were most becoming to the frankly Junoesque curves which Calve shares with most prima donnas.

CITY OWNERSHIP OF TRANSIT URGED BY BONDHOLDERS

Chairman Cobb of Committee Approves Commission's Plan at Hearing.

John Candler Cobb of Boston, Chairman of the New York Railways Bondholders' Committee and a director in that corporation, who in 1916 tried unsuccessfully to bring about a cessation of night service on the surface car lines of this city, gave his approval to the Transit Commission's proposed solution of the traction tangle while testifying to-day before the commission.

Mr. Cobb in 1916 urged partial cessation of service from 7 P. M. to midnight and complete stagnation of operation from midnight to 6 o'clock in the morning.

Mr. Cobb spoke for owners of $23,000,000 in bonds. He said: "The attitude of our committee is that assuming that municipal control of the tractions has been decided upon, which seems to be plain, we feel that the plan generally accomplishes the result in a favorable way."

Mr. Cobb did not believe the traction properties of this city had been as well managed as they could have been. He blamed the Legislature for the legal possibility of running traction systems on shoestring equities.

He urged a change in the law governing the financing of traction properties.

Ronald E. McDougall, general manager of the New York and Harlem Railroad, was not certain whether or not his railroad was owned by the New York Central. The New York and Harlem operates on Fourth and Madison Avenues.

"In there any mystery about it—if there is we had better go into it," asked Judge Shearn.

Mr. McDougall said there was no mystery. He only wished to be accurate.

Mr. McDougall said the power for the New York and Harlem was supplied by the New York City, which in turn got it from the I. R. T. Company and according to Mr. McDougall, "Hedges, the New York Railways receiver, makes a middleman's profit of 18 per cent. on the power sold."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—Urban Ledoux's hunt for an honest man among the arms delegates at the Conference Building was temporarily abandoned to-day when police arrested him on a charge of disorderly conduct. He had been parading in front of the building with his large heart-studded umbrella, a lantern and Bible, "hunting for an honest man."

Before a District Judge, Ledoux pleaded not guilty and was held under $25 bond. His umbrella, lantern and Bible were retained by the police.

HAYS TURNS DOWN $150,000 MOVIE JOB

Postmaster General Declines Post as "High Arbiter" With Three-Year Contract.

Postmaster General Will H. Hays has definitely declined the post as "high arbiter" of the motion picture industry of this country. It was learned yesterday the offer of the Chairmanship of the newly organized national association of film men, with a salary of $150,000 a year and a three-year contract, had been formally rejected by him with his thanks to the film representatives who had conveyed the proposition personally to him in Washington within the last few days.

It is the belief of persons in the motion picture industry in New York, who also are closely in touch with the affairs and aspirations of the cinema leaders, that Mr. Hays's decision came as a result of his conviction that such a move by him, should he step out of the Cabinet or attempt to manage the film affairs while still retaining his Government position, might reflect a shadow of collusion between the motion picture industry and the Republican Administration.

It is considered improbable now that the motion picture men will be able to induce any Cabinet member to accept the position.

Inasmuch as it appears probable the cinema play leaders will have to go outside the governmental service to obtain a man to lead their reorganized body, the question as to just who it will become more interesting.
